Honorable Mayor and Ames City Council –

On March 27, 2018, Council considered an ordinance mandating individual water meters on apartment buildings and its effective date. After public input and discussion, it was determined that Council couldn't reconsider the ordinance at that meeting, but they could delay the effective date in order to allow time to reconsider the ordinance. It was voted to have the new effective date as January 1, 2019. We are about a month away from this new date, but the ordinance hasn't been reconsidered or a motion to reconsider the ordinance.

I encourage all of you to review the video from March 27th to re-familiarize yourself with the topic. Please ask Staff to add the reconsideration of this topic to a future agenda before the effective date of January 1, 2019.

Thank you for your consideration,

Justin Dodge
